OUDCE is sponsoring an annual lecture on landscape archaeology in memory of Mick Aston, who sadly died earlier this year. Mick was tutor in local studies in the Department for Continuing Education before moving to Bristol University as Staff Tutor in Archaeology. Earlier he had made a major contribution to the archaeology of Oxfordshire through his work on the Sites and Monuments Record, then based at the City and Count Museum, Woodstock.

In this lecture Trevor will discuss the thinking behind Landscape Archaeology, a book which went on to have a significant impact on the development of field archaeology in Britain. He will also explain how he and Mick worked together to produce the book against the background of the burgeoning of Rescue Archaeology. Trevor will also examine subsequent field archaeology projects, including Mick’s own work at Shapwick. Finally, Trevor will look at current work in greater Oxford, which continues the tradition that Mick did so much to promote.
